

ABSTRACT

A ceramic, porcelain or china plate having a recessed central food supporting surface bounded by an elevated outwardly extending rim terminating in a edge, with a peripheral opening in the edge leading to a generally circular opening through the rim which may be bounded by a raised rib, the opening adapted to receive lower portions of the body of a stemmed wine glass to support the wine glass at the plate rim. The raised rib is angled downwardly from the edge slightly towards the recessed central food supporting surface to support the wine glass at a slightly tilted angle to the general plane of the plate.